A Garage for Town or Country

No longer may an automobile be sheltered in any sort of building or on a dirt floor. Too much expense is involved in tires, repairs and general maintenance for a car to be kept in a building that does not fully protect it. And with an increase every year in the number of persons owning cars, the individual garage is coming more and more into demand in every community.

The Long-Bell garage shown here fills the requirements for a small, attractive, inexpensive building, and is suitable for town or farm use. It is well lighted, and large enough for ordinary work to be done around the car. The blue prints of this garage show construction in detail and include a complete material bill. # Shelter That Expensive Machinery

The demand is growing for well constructed implement sheds, where all of the movable machinery of the farm may be sheltered.
—a roomy building where repairs to machinery may be made during the winter season.

The advantages of sheltering expensive machinery from the weather are too well known to be repeated here. The average farm needs the commodious shelter space provided in this building, which is designed as a permanent and attractive addition to any group of farm buildings.

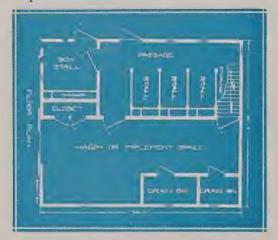

This building is so designed that a shorter or longer building may be planned from the blue prints. In ordering these blue prints, specify Long-Bell Implement Shed No. 20—$1.50 each. Material bill furnished.

A Practical Barn for the Small Farm

The man on the small farm needs a barn which not only provides stalls for two or three horses, but a stall as well for a cow and space for the wagon and small implements.

These requirements were followed out in designing Long-Bell Barn No. 40. Sufficient grain storage space for the small farm has been allowed; there is a closet for one or two sets of harness; a commodious hay loft; three horse stalls and a box stall, and a small storage space under the stairway.

The photograph shows an outside entrance to the hay loft large enough for a loader to be used in filling the loft.

A Full Length Porch Shown to Advantage

Cuts of the above house, as well as of any other house in the Long-Bell Plan Service, are available free to dealers in Long-Bell products for newspaper advertising. Specify size, 2 or 3 columns.

A SPACIOUS front porch is shown across the front of this house, and constructed without a break in the roof. A decidedly novel feature for a house of this size are the double French doors, which lend an air of spaciousness to the exterior and add to the attractiveness of the living room.

The plan allows for a large living room with a fireplace. There is an arched opening between the living room and the dining room, thus both rooms can be thrown into one. The floor plan provides a large breakfast room and two bedrooms, one of which is glassed in. A door opens off one corner of the living room to the driveway.

A Two-Family House

THIS plan answers the demand for a residence of the duplex type suitable for use in smaller cities. The duplex residence has both apartments on one floor, and the design answers the purpose practically and satisfactorily.

The duplex arrangement is not so noticeable from the street, and the plan cannot spoil the appearance of the neighborhood, as often happens with a 2-story duplex. Separate heating plants may be used, if so desired. Each apartment has a living room with fireplace, dining room, bedroom, kitchenet, bathroom and dressing room.

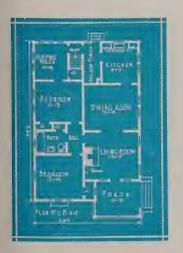

The owner may live in one apartment and rent the other, thus making the home help pay for itself.

Cuts of the above house, as well as of any other house in the Long-Bell Plan Service, are available free to dealers in Long-Bell products for newspaper advertising. Specify size, 2 or 3 columns.

MANY persons like to have a house with a bedroom at the front. Here is such a plan, so arranged that the living room is made no less attractive than it otherwise would be. The home is in excellent taste and embodies the best of new ideas in residence construction.

The low sloping roof means a better looking house with less material, and ventilators in the attic remove danger of excessive heat sometimes caused by low roofs. The plan provides for a living room, dining room, kitchen, two bedrooms, a bathroom and a sleeping porch.

An Attractive Dutch Colonial Design

A DUTCH COLONIAL with many interesting features is shown here for the home planner who wants modern attractiveness and utility combined. It has a very tasteful and convenient arrangement, which utilizes the floor space to the best advantage. The sheltered terrace across the front, with the high-backed benches at each end, the massive front door, the windows with divided lights, the shutters, all add to its beauty and individuality.

Inside we find a large living room with a sun porch at the right, large dining room, kitchen, pantry and toilet downstairs. Upstairs there are three large bedrooms, each with a closet, a bathroom and a large hall closet.

A Modern Barn

Long-Bell Plan No. 41 is a modern braced rafter gambrel roofed barn of good proportions and convenient arrangement. It is of the average size of 36x50 feet, 16 feet high at the plate and 33 feet at the ridge.

This barn is skillfully framed and wind braced. The loft capacity is 60 tons of loose hay. The stable, when arranged and equipped as shown in the floor plan, is such that the least labor is necessary in caring for the stock it shelters. The floor plan provides space for twelve head of horses in six five-foot single and three ten-foot double stalls and seven milk cattle in modern dairy stalls.

A 600-bushel grain bin is conveniently placed. Hay is dropped from the loft to the center feeding passage. An overhead litter carrier system makes light and quick the labor of cleaning the barn. The eighteen large windows insure a well lighted interior. Four rolling doors conveniently placed give ready access to all parts of the lower floor.

A Good Type of Hog House

The semi-monitor or saw-tooth roofed hog house is a type long popular with successful hog breeders. It is built facing south, and the windows are so placed that there is abundant sunshine on the floors of all pens in days of late winter and early spring.

A February or March pig needs sunshine—a sun bath—as much as he does food. The floor must be dry and free from drafts. A house of this kind provides those essentials.

Long-Bell Hog House Plan No. 50 is 24 feet wide, 42 feet long, 5 feet 6 inches high at the plate and 15 feet at the ridge. The above illustration shows the arrangement of doors and windows. There are no doors or windows in the north wall.

The floor space is divided into a double row of pens with alley-way between. The floor plan shows a convenient pen arrangement that may be changed to conform to individual requirements. Blue Prints and list of material show the details of construction.

A Long-Bell Pole Barn

(The Most Barn for the Money)

A prime favorite with the practical farmer. The simple construction and low cost of the barn when built with Long-Bell creosoted poles is a most important consideration.

No costly foundation is needed with this plan. Long-Bell creoted poles are trim and straight and make a frame work that is practically everlasting when set firmly in the ground. An exceptionally large hay capacity is provided, and the plan allows for much stock and machinery shelter in the sheds that surround the hay bay on three sides.

Sixty tons of partly settled hay is the capacity of the 20 foot wide hay bay. Additional stover or straw for bedding can be carried on the floor over the stock compartment on two sides of the bay. Such floor is omitted on the end of the bay.

This barn is substantially framed and wind-braced; nothing short of a hurricane can upset it. The unfinished corner on the pictured barn corresponds with the corner shown finished.

The barn is 54 feet 10 inches wide, 65 feet 5 inches long; the hay bay is 48 feet long by 20 feet wide, and the height of barn at ridge is 34 feet; at eaves about 8 feet.

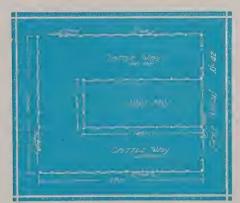

A spreader can be driven through the barn for cleaning out.

This barn provides more shelter for stock and fodder, for its cost, than other barn plans.

The blue prints make plain all details of construction.

Long-Bell Combined Crib and Granary

By combining in one plan these two indispensable farm buildings—the granary and crib—the covered driveway and seed corn loft above is made possible at slight additional outlay. The driveway is available for implement shelter, and the loft is needed for seed corn and miscellaneous storage.

The Long-Bell Granary pictured above provides storage for 1,000 bushels of ear corn and 1,500 bushels of small grain. The granary is eight feet wide and ten feet deep, divided by tight partitions into three bins, each bin provided with handy scoop door on the driveway side. The building has a total width of 26 feet; the crib and granary are 8 feet wide, the driveway 10 feet. The length is 32 feet, the height at plate 12 feet; the crib and granary floors are frame, two feet above grade to escape ground moisture and destruction of grain by rats and mice.

The driveway doors are ten feet wide and twelve feet high. There is about eleven feet of headway between finished driveway floor level and loft floor over driveway. This height permits unloading in the driveway from wagon using high side or "bat" boards. The building is bolted to a six-inch concrete wall raised one foot above grade.

Complete working blue print drawings of thirteen large sheets showing cutting lengths and mitres and blue print specifications are available.

A Dandy Five Room Home

Here is another thirty-foot house with a roominess rather surprising in so compact a plan. The large living room provides a cheerful hearth, with bookcases at each side. The screened porch makes an ideal sitting room in the summer time, for sewing, reading, or the afternoon nap. It can be inclosed with glass in the winter time, so that it can be used as a conservatory, or for other purposes.

The woman with a nice dining room set will be interested in the dimensions of the dining room shown in this plan. There are two nice bedrooms, each with a handy closet, and well placed bath and kitchen. The arrangement of the screened back porch provides an inside and outside entrance to the basement.

A Home of Distinctive Charm

This home of modified Colonial style has many up-to-date features to make it attractive to the prospective home builder. It nestles close to the ground. The side porch and the style of the front entrance are much favored in American Architecture.

On the second floor there are four large bedrooms, one of which can be used as a sleeping porch, the bathroom and a linen closet. One of the bedrooms has a dressing alcove and the others have roomy closets.

Another Home for the Narrow Lot

Here is a modest five-room bungalow embodying good taste and economical construction. The arrangement permits a living room and bedroom at the front of the house. All of the rooms are comfortably large, are well lighted and conveniently accessible each to the other.

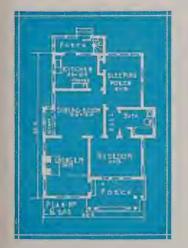

The second bedroom is planned sleeping porch style, yet can be closed and heated just as well as any other part of the house. The bathroom is of ample size. There is a little alcove in the dining room that lends a distinctive touch.

The openings into the kitchen leave convenient spaces for the cabinet, sink and drainboard and the stove. The entrance to the basement is from the back porch.

It is a good design for the family requiring a home of this size. Its width commends it to the narrow lot.

In Long-Bell Plan No. 288, designed especially for the small family, the breakfast alcove supplants the dining room, and the extra space is turned into the handsome, spacious living room.

The latticed front porch gives a real homey touch, and insures a cool, shady place for the porch swing in the summer time, no matter which way the house faces. The breakfast alcove will seat four persons comfortably. A nice-sized bathroom is conveniently placed between two roomy bedrooms, the window areas in which assure plenty of light and air.

The kitchen allows a step-saving arrangement and there is a deep closet for pantry or storage purposes.

An Attractive, Convenient Home

Order Long-Bell Blue Print No. 201—$1.50 each

The floor plan of this home shows a pleasing arrangement. Provision is made for a large front bedroom. The opening on the front porch may be either a window or a door, as desired. There is a living room, 13x15 feet, with fireplace and built-in cases, large dining room, a bathroom, another bedroom, and the kitchen. The bathroom has two windows. The hall connects all the rooms, except the kitchen, in a very convenient way.

Living and Dining Rooms Combined

Order Long-Bell Blue Print No. 372—$1.50 each

This design will appeal to those who do not need a large house but who like the full-length living room nearly always found in larger homes. The combination of the living and dining room space gives a single room 13x23 feet.

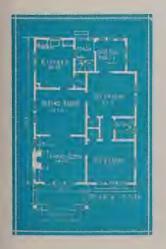

There is a large bedroom 12x13 feet, bathroom, kitchen, breakfast room and a breakfast alcove. The breakfast room is large enough for a single bed if it were ever needed, and the breakfast alcove will seat several persons comfortably.

There is a screened back porch and an inclosed entrance to the basement.

Two Bedrooms and a Sleeping Porch

Order Long-Bell Blue Print No. 374 —$1.50 each

Here is an unpretentious, yet mighty attractive home, planned along lines of most general appeal for a home of its size.

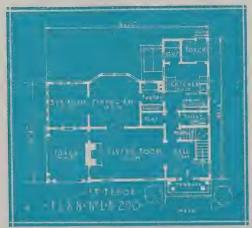

It has two spacious bedrooms and a sleeping porch. The nature of the plan has permitted the elimination of a hall, yet the convenience afforded by the hall has been retained.

The living room, dining room and kitchen are all roomy and well lighted. The inclosed back porch permits entrance to the basement from the outside without passage through the kitchen, a feature housewives will appreciate.

A Beautiful, Large Home

This residence, designed to meet the requirements of the large family, contains several very interesting features which are being widely adopted in the newer homes of its size. Attention is called especially to the sitting porch at the side, the downstairs lavatory the cloak closet, and to the attractive sun room leading off the dining room. The large bedroom upstairs has a fireplace, and the sewing room can easily become a fourth bedroom or attractive nursery. The house is set "long way to the front" and is especially adapted to an irregular lot.

Three Bedrooms on One Floor

Order Long-Bell Blue Print No. 296—$1.50 each.

Many prospective home builders are looking for just this type of house, a one-story house with three bedrooms. In addition to that feature it possesses an appealing outward attractiveness, with veranda type porch. The corner bedroom at the rear has a door opening onto this porch, which of course can be a window if desired.

There is a living room, dining room, bath and spacious center hall. The other rear bedroom could serve as a maid's room, if one were wanted for that purpose. Adequate closet space is provided.

"Nestling" On The Ground

Order Long-Bell Blue Print No. 323— $1.50 each.

The average builder no longer believes that a house must set on a high foundation. He prefers to have it appear that his house nestles on the ground or comes up out of it. This home is an example of the added beauty of such a plan. The good-looking benches add an inviting attractiveness to the place.

The floor plan provides a living room, dining room, two bedrooms, bath, several closets, kitchen with considerable built-in work and a breakfast alcove adjoining.

A Homelike House

This modest home for the small family will depreciate little in value in the years that it serves as a home, because its exterior has been designed along lines of good taste and its interior with an eye to comfort and utility. That is a feature wise builders think of when planning their homes, for in addition to the inestimable advantage of home ownership, the investment side should be considered.

Order Long-Bell Blue Print No. 363— $1.50 each.

A well-planned and designed home built in a good location increases in value in the majority of cases, and it is almost invariably true that a home so selected has at least, at the end of its period of service to the builder, returned the owner the amount of his original investment less the interest involved. Some like to say the interest was their "rent"; and pro-rating it, estimate that for the period of occupancy their rent was far lower than they would have had to pay a landlord.

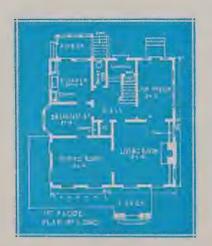

The plan provides a spacious dining room with a fireplace, a well-lighted living room with a cloak-closet, roomy bedroom, a bath, a kitchen with built-in cabinets over the drainboards, and an inclosed screen porch. The hall connecting the living room, bath and bedroom has a linen closet. If desired, the cloak-closet could be built to conceal one of the new type folding beds, thus giving the house five-room efficiency.

An Artistic Two-Story Home

The midwestern type of home has won a permanent place in the hearts of home-lovers. It represents so well the new American viewpoint of comfort and simple elegance.

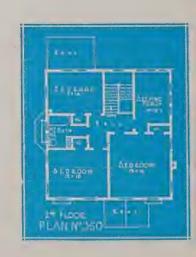

Its size permits the accommodation of a fairly large family and maid. The up-to-the-minute touches are the breakfast room and sun parlor, the downstairs lavatory and the modernized Colonial entrance. There is no waste space in the second floor plan and the sleeping porch is so arranged that it can be used as a separate bedroom if desired.

An Attractive Individual Garage

Long-Bell gothic garage No. G11 is of excellent appearance, and is inexpensive. It is 12x18 feet in size, the door opening 8x8 feet in the clear. This garage affords a welcome relief from the rather homely garage commonly built.

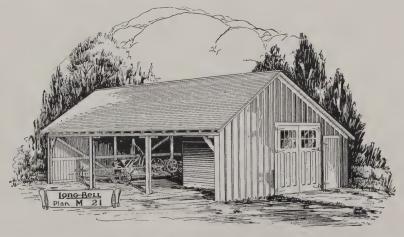

There is no good reason why garages should not be good looking and an ornament to the building lot. This handsome garage can be built at a cost not to exceed that of plainer looking ones of the same size. One-sheet blue print of this building, with list of material, 25 cents.

For Housing Small Implements

Long-Bell implement shed plan No. M21 is designed with special regard for housing implements where the winters are not severe and where low cost is an important factor. The building is 24x36, inclosed on two sides, and one end with barn boards and battens. A scientifically designed scissors truss supports the roof load and prevents bulging at the plate line. In one end is partitioned off a room for use as a garage. There is also provision for a work bench and repair shop.

This building will be found very suitable for average farm conditions in the Southwest and can be built at moderate expense. Creosoted posts set in concrete constitute the frame of this building, which is well braced and permanent.

Material bill and one-sheet blue print may be had for 25 cents.

A Good Poultry House in Sections

Long-Bell poultry house No. P31 is especially designed to enable the builder to add readily to the length of the building and so care for an increased flock. This poultry house may be built 10x10, 10x20, 10x30. To increase length, simply repeat the 10x10 unit. Each additional 10 feet is a repetition of the original unit except, of course, that one end is omitted.

This house has been carefully designed to meet the requirements of modern poultry raisers. It is abundantly lighted with long windows that permit the direct sunlight on the floor of the house and ventilation is through muslin screened opening, which insures a steady supply of fresh air without draught. It is a neat building of good appearance and an ornament to any property.

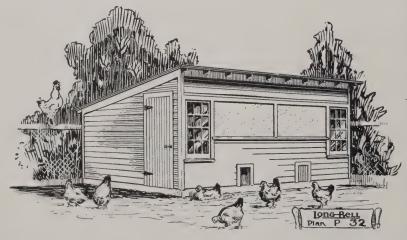

One-sheet blue print and bill of material may be had for 25 cents.

Proper Shelter for Poultry

Long-Bell poultry design No. P32 is 12 feet deep and 18 feet long. It is lighted by two large windows, assuring direct sunlight on the floor of the house where it is most beneficial. Good ventilation is assured by the large muslin screened opening through which the air filters. This method of ventilation is approved by experiment stations and practical poultry raisers. The building is placed on a light concrete wall and the floor can be of clay, gravel or concrete, and should be raised 6 inches above the ground to insure dryness.

One-sheet blue print and bill of material are furnished at 25 cents.

A Practical Poultry House

This poultry house is designed with careful attention to modern requirements of ventilation and sanitation. It is of pleasing proportions, good appearance, and is a credit to any group of farm buildings.

It is placed on a light 6-inch-high concrete wall and is 12 feet deep and 16 feet long. It provides a scratching shed screened with four muslin curtains through which the air filters and assures plenty of ventilation, but prevents draughts from striking the birds either when at work or on the roosts. The upper row of windows can be shifted horizontally to increase ventilation.

This is a well ventilated, well lighted building in which poultry will thrive. One-sheet blue print and bill of material will be furnished for 25 cents.

A Portable Farrowing House

The Long-Bell Wigwam individual portable farrowing house is 6x8 feet on the ground and built on substantial runners which insure its permanency and easy transportation. This house has several unique improvements such as vertical sliding end doors; hinged side doors that, when opened, admit a flood of sunlight direct on the nest, and the extended gable that insures ventilation.

The house can be used with or without the floor. One-sheet blue print and bill of material, 25 cents.

Good Shelter for Hogs

Long-Bell hog house plan No. H51 is a building 12x24 feet. This building provides farrowing house of four 6x8-foot pens with a passageway 4 feet in width the entire length of the building. In the rear wall it provides small doors opening into each pen.

This house should be built facing the south and when so placed large windows admit an abundance of sunlight directly onto the pen floors. This building is simple and inexpensive and provides the young pigs with protection against storms that are prevalent in late winter and early spring.

One-sheet blue print and bill of material for hog house plan No. H51, 25 cents.

This Hog House Built on Runners

The Long-Bell hog house No. H52 is 8 feet square, substantially framed and placed on runners that render it easily portable. Gables are extended to insure ventilation. The end door is of sufficient height to accommodate the largest sow. Side doors are hinged at the plate and are sustained in raised position by permanent hinge braces.

This house is an ideal farrowing house or for later use in warm weather.

One-sheet blue print and bill of material, 25 cents.

Order Long-Bell Blue Print No. 398—$1.50 Each

The simple lines of this house have placed its general type well in the lead in the design of small homes called for by people today. Its virtues seem to be that it is always attractive, has nothing "freakish" about it and has the quality of "wearing well," always an important asset in any plan.

There is an attractive sun parlor on the right side of the front porch, which of course can be dispensed with if not desired. The plan also provides for two bedrooms, each with a closet, spacious living room and dining room, a bath, a large kitchen, and a screened back porch with an outside entrance to the basement.

With a Bedroom at the Front

The design shown on this page has the cozy, comfortable air of the real home. At the front is a bedroom, as shown in the floor plan. It can be entered from the living room or from the hall, which connects the two bedrooms, the bath and the dining room.

Both bedrooms have two sets of double windows allowing ample ventilation. There is a spacious linen closet at the rear end of the hall, and another closet in the bathroom. The living room is of generous size, with space for a handsome fireplace on the outside wall. Good-sized dining room, kitchen and a screened porch complete the plan.

Good For The Corner Lot

Order Long-Bell Blue Print No. 397—$1.50 Each

Long-Bell Plan No. 397 offers a good design for a corner lot. The pergola at the front adds a very effective decorative feature, but of course can be dispensed with if necessary.

A feature of the plan is the large breakfast room, with double windows looking onto the screened side porch. An unusual and attractive feature is to be found in the front bedroom—the window seat in a bay, with French windows.

There is a large living room, dining room, two bedrooms, bath, kitchen, and a very convenient hall, in addition to the breakfast room.

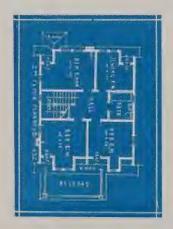

NOTE—Orders for blue prints of any of the homes in this service must come from retail lumber dealers.

A Modified Colonial Home

This handsome residence is a modification of the popular Dutch Colonial plan. To the family seeking a home of its size, this plan offers several distinctive and up-to-date features in the way of arrangement incorporating the new ideals in comfort and convenience.

The living room is exceptionally large and provides a fireplace with book cases on each side. Back of the dining room there is a screen porch, an ideal place to serve the meals in the summer time. On the upper floor there are three bedrooms and a sewing room, which, of course, can serve as another bedroom or nursery.

With Five Well-Arranged Rooms

Order Long-Bell Blue Print No. 426—$1.50 each

This is a quite distinctive small home, with its shutters, divided-light windows and massive paneled door, as well as other inviting features.

The floor plan calls for five well-arranged rooms. Plenty of light and air is provided for in the bed-rooms, each of which has a deep closet. The solid wall at one side of the living room allows a convenient place for the piano or davenport.

In the areaway leading to the bath there is a closet for the linen. The kitchen is compactly arranged, and opens onto an enclosed back porch.

A Comfortable Cottage

Order Long-Bell Blue Print No. 428— $1.50 each

Simplicity is the keynote of this attractive home, with its full-length, latticed porch and broad eaves. It is very good-looking now, but of course when the crimson ramblers have covered the lattice it will be much prettier and even more homey looking.

Inside, this home is conveniently arranged. There is no wasted space. There are two good bedrooms, large living room with fireplace and a dining alcove with built-in seats, as well as a properly arranged kitchen and a bathroom.

A Good Dutch Colonial Design

The popularity of the Dutch Colonial, a distinctly American type of home, seemingly knows no bounds. This house is an especially pleasing one, and possesses much grace of line.

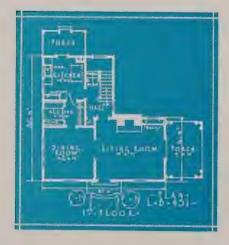

The formal entrance and the side porch of course will appeal to many. The breakfast room is very conveniently placed. There are two large bedrooms and a good-sized sleeping porch.

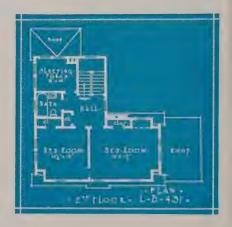

A pleasing color harmony for this home would be the use of green shutters, the

Many New Features Here

Order Long-Bell Blue Print No. 429— $1.50 each.

This quaint home, with the charming French doors at either side of the entrance, embodies some of the newer ideas in home construction that contribute to a very successful plan.

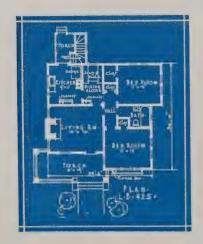

The latticed porch between the two bedrooms furnishes a cozy retreat for sewing. The attractive low-pitched roof does not cause discomfort in warm weather because of the ventilators at the sides. The wide siding, used down to the ground, is another good feature.

The floor plan shows a full five-room house, with a spacious living room and two good-sized bedrooms.

Four Rooms of 5-Room Efficiency

Order Long-Bell Blue Print No. 425—$1.50 each.

The broad eaves and low sloping roof always make this design of home attractive to the prospective home builder. It is a design that wears well with the years and is always inviting.

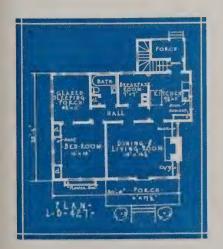

The large living room with the real fireplace is for use as a dining room when occasion requires. With the breakfast alcove the house saves space and acquires all the efficiency of five rooms.

There are two nice-sized bedrooms, each with a large closet that does not cut up the room.

A Charming 4-Room Dwelling

Order Long-Bell Blue Print No. 427—$1.50 each.

This plan provides for combining the living room and dining room, an idea that is growing in popularity. With a commodious breakfast room, this arrangement is very practical.

The large front bedroom with two closets, and the sleeping porch, which is inclosed, provide the customary sleeping space for this size of house. The kitchen is of a size and arrangement to save the housewife unnecessary steps.

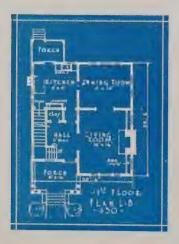

The inexpensive trellises enhance the exterior considerably.

A Practical, Roomy Design

Here is a home of sensible and popular appeal. It is a roomy story-and-a-half home, and while the photograph shows it finished in shingles it can of course be finished in the regulation weatherboarding as well.

On the first floor there is a commodious living room, set off from the front door by a large reception hall. The dining room, kitchen, bath and the two bedrooms all are most conveniently arranged and are of good size.

Substantial Five-Room Dwelling

Order Long-Bell Blue Print No. 400—$1.50 each.

This design makes a substantial, good-looking home. The outstanding exterior features are the low, sloping roof, the broad eaves and the attractive entrance.

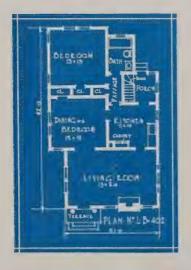

The floor plan shows a full five-room arrangement, as well as a good-sized breakfast room. The living room is comfortably large, with a good-sized fireplace. The breakfast room is between the dining room and kitchen. Both bedrooms are the same size and each has a closet.

A good floor plan like this means much toward the comforts and conveniences of a real home.

An Attractive Small Home

Order Long-Bell Blue Print No. 402—$1.50 each.

This plan answers the demand of those who have been seeking a small home for a small family. It is attractively designed on the exterior. The outside chimney lends a touch of individuality, and saves space in the living room. The use of wide siding on a small home seems to add to its appearance.

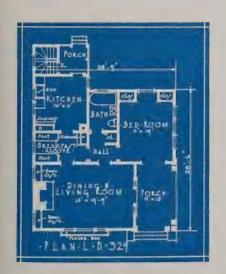

The living room is very spacious, extending across the front of the house. The room back of the living room may be used either as a dining room or bedroom. There is a spacious bedroom at the back of the house. The kitchen and bath complete the floor plan. Each bedroom has a closet, and there is a closet for linens in the passageway.

This is a very complete, compact, yet not cramped, small home plan.

Another Small Home Design

Order Long-Bell Blue Print No. 329—$1.50 each.

A combination living and dining room and a single good sized bedroom distinguish this good-looking small home plan. The wide eaves, the arrangement of the roof, the wide siding and the trellises and shrubbery give a home-like exterior.

The breakfast room is convenient and cozy, and eliminates the necessity ordinarily of using the living room for dining room purposes. The bedroom is roomy, has two closets, and four windows. French doors open onto the porch from the bedroom. The linen closet is in the entry to the bath.

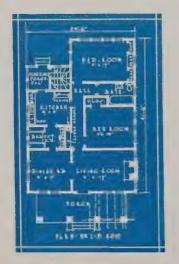

An economical feature in point of construction cost is the entrance to the basement. A single entrance serves for access both from the outside and inside.

PICTURE SHOWS BARN 40 FEET WIDE. FOR SAME DESIGN 32 FEET WIDE ORDER LONG-BELL BLUE PRINT No. B-76.

A Long-Bell Gothic Barn

The Gothic-roofed barn is easily the outstanding barn in any neighborhood in which it is built. It attracts much favorable attention and comment. Its handsome appearance and economical storage space explain its popularity.

The barn pictured above may be built either 32 feet wide or 40 feet wide. Either width may be built in varying lengths over the minimum length of 48 feet. The blue prints include an extra 8-foot unit section, and by repeating the construction of this eight foot unit the builder may acquire the desired length. The sizes most generally built:

Barn Plan No. B-76—32 feet wide by 48, 56, 64 or 72 feet long.

Barn Plan No. B-77-40 feet wide by 48, 56, 64, 72 or 80 feet long.

Hay is unloaded from the driveway. The door and window arrangement may be changed to conform to the floor plan adopted, which is left to the option of the builder. The floor spacing of this and all Long-Bell Gothic barns must be arranged to suit each builder's individual requirements.

No floor plans are furnished with the blue prints. The plans include material and construction lists, and details for constructing the Gothic rafter. Be sure to specify width desired.

A Long-Bell Dairy Barn

The modern dairy barn accurately pictured above fulfills the requirements of convenience, light and sanitation, and is as substantial as it is good-looking.

Plans for this barn may be had in two widths, 32 feet and 36 feet. The 32-foot barn is just right for a double row of cows facing a center passage-way. In the 36-foot-width barn there is room for a center driveway with cows facing out in a double row.

Either width of this dairy barn may be built in varying lengths over the minimum length of 32 feet for plan B-74 and 40 feet for plan B-75. The blue prints include an extra 8-foot unit section, and by repeating the construction of this 8-foot section the builder may attain the length desired. Some convenient sizes:

Barn Plan No. B-74-32 feet wide by 40, 48, 56 or 64 feet long.

Barn Plan No. B-75-36 feet wide by 40, 48, 56, 64 or 72 feet long.

It is unlikely that any one floor plan that might be prepared for this barn would be just right for all the dairymen who will build it, and for that reason no floor plans are supplied with the blue prints. The lumberman can readily lay out a floor plan to meet the individual needs of the builder. The plans include material and construction lists. Be sure to specify width desired.

An Attractive Gothic Barn Design

Here is a good all-purpose barn for the average farm. Its proportions are pleasing and the dimensions are such that it may be equipped with stalls, bins, and the like, in a handy, timesaving way. Both ends of the barn are alike, except that there is no gable hay door in the end not in view.

The door and window arrangement can be easily changed by the builder, although it is about right for many farms as it is shown.

Plans are furnished for building this barn either 30 feet wide or 36 feet wide. A variety of lengths is afforded by the use of an extra 8-foot unit section in the plan, and by repeating the construction of this unit over the minimum lengths shown below the builder may attain within a few feet of the desired length. Some practical sizes:

Barn Plan No. B-70-30 feet wide by 32, 40, 48 or 56 feet long.

Barn Plan No. B-71-36 feet wide by 40, 48, 56 or 64 feet long.

No floor plans are furnished. The builder should outline his floor-space requirements to the lumberman, who can easily sketch out the exact arrangement desired. The plans include material and construction lists and detail for constructing the Gothic rafter. Be sure to specify width desired.

Another Attractive Gothic Barn

A barn with cross-driveway at grade is in favor with many farmers. The driveway door admits a large hay load, and the driveway can be used for temporary shelter for other loads and implements. The loft floor is elevated over the driveway and the hay is taken in through the end gable door. The windows and doors need not be located just as shown. Their position can be changed, if necessary, to conform to the floor plan adopted.

This barn may be built either 32 feet wide or 36 feet wide. The extra 8-foot unit section included in the plans permits a variety of lengths. The sizes most generally built:

Barn Plan No. B-72-32 feet wide by 40, 48 or 56 feet long.

Barn Plan No. B-73-36 feet wide by 46, 54 or 62 feet long.

Floor plans should be drawn to meet the special requirements of the owner. None are furnished with the plans. Material and construction lists and detail for constructing the Gothic rafter are included with the plans. Be sure to specify width desired.

Here is a Long-Bell "Model Home" built in Dallas, Texas—a home built throughout of Long-Bell lumber, Long-Bell oak flooring and Long-Bell white pine doors. It was constructed through the efforts of J. M. Wilcox & Co., Dallas lumber dealer, and the Dallas Times Herald. It is an attractive six-room house, well arranged and inviting in exterior and interior appearances. Interior views of this home are shown on the following pages.

Two floor plans are shown, LB-700 being a house without a basement, as is built in some sections of the country. LB-700-B is the floor arrangement for a house with a basement, the only change being in an inside entrance to the basement from the rear of the home. In ordering blue prints of this plan, be sure to specify whether plan is desired with or without basement.

Be sure to specify either LB-700 or LB-700-B in ordering — blue prints $1.50.

Here is the Model Home's center of family activity—the living room. It is a cheerful place. On either side of the fire-place, the doors open onto a terrace. The main entrance to the living room from the front porch at the left is unseen in this picture. This living room is 14x18 feet, a spacious place for family activity and comfort.

The dining room in this Model Home. opening off of the living room through French doors, is 13x14 feet. It is a sizeable, comfortable, cheerful room. The door at the left opens into the spacious breakfast room.

The above is the guest bedroom, a delightful room opening off of the hallway and adjoining the bath. It is a room  $13x13\frac{1}{2}$  feet, with a large closet and a group of three windows—a light, airy room.

Below are shown two views of the very attractive breakfast room, a room 8 feet x 9 feet 9 inches with built-in china closet. Its decorations are charming. It is of a size sufficient for ordinary family needs and will be used daily A swinging door enters into the kitchen.

Here are two views of the kitchen. This is a kitchen of comfortable size — 10x13 feet — containing a built-in cabinet, shown in the illustration at the left, built-in ironing board and closet and all other modern features of a well appointed kitchen. The doorway at the extreme left, not seen in this illustration, is into the inclosed porch, which is a sizeable room in itself with broom closet and plenty of space for refrigerator and other storage purposes.

The built-in kitchen cabinet at the right of the lower illustration is very convenient and useful. The door at the left in this illustration opens into the hallway. The door at the right is into a large closet for kitchen storage purposes. Wallboard is used in the panels of this kitchen, the decorations being painted in the panels, as shown.

This home, as built at Dallas, Texas, is constructed entirely of Long-Bell trade-marked lumber, Long-Bell oak flooring and Long-Bell white pine doors.

A Neat Looking Design

The exterior of this house has a spick and span look everyone likes to see in a home. Well-placed trim adds to its appearance. The combined porch and terrace is an attractive feature.

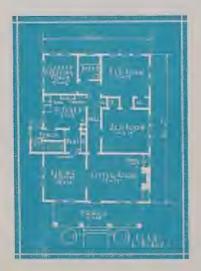

The living room is of generous size, and has fireplace and bookcases. Between the spacious dining room and the step-saving kitchen is an attractive breakfast room. The two bedrooms have plenty of ventilation and an entry between them, flanked on either side by large closets. The rear bedroom enters into the sleeping porch.

Pergola Porch Across Front

Order Long-Bell Blue Print No. 462—$1.50 each.

The pergola porch is attractive. Also it permits more light to enter the rooms that face the porch. Properly trellised and vine-entwined, it sets off the home attractively in the growing season.

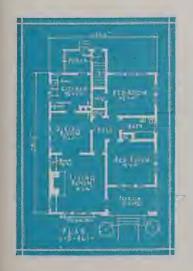

At the front of the house is a large living room, and a well-proportioned dining room. Two large bedrooms have a door between them. A glazed sleeping porch, bath and kitchen complete the plan.

Stereotypes of the above house, as well as of any other house in the Long-Bell plan service, are available free to dealers in Long-Bell products for newspaper advertising.

Suggesting Serenity Within

Order Long-Bell Blue Print No. 461—$1.50 each.

Here is an attractive, modest design of small home. The native stone pillars for the porch suggest substantiality.

In the living room, size 15 feet by 16 feet, the fireplace is flanked on either side by bookcases. The dining room is exactly square. The two bedrooms both have closets and double exposures. The bathroom is conveniently located, and the kitchen is planned to save the housewife steps.

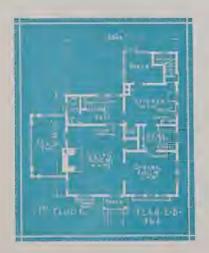

NOTE—Orders for Blue Prints of any of the houses in this service must come from retail lumber dealers.

An Excellent Two-Story Model

Some of the best of the new ideas in home construction are embodied in this good-looking house. The importance of well-placed shrubbery as an enhancement to the exterior should not be overlooked.

As the floor plans indicate, there is provision on the first floor for living room, dining room, dining alcove, kitchen and downstairs toilet; on the second floor for three bedrooms and the bath.

Order Long-Bell Blue Print No. 464—$1.50 each.

NOTICE—Blue Prints of these houses may be ordered for $1.50 each. No alterations will be made. Material bills are not furnished. Be sure to specify blue print by number in ordering.

A Modern Crib & Granary

THIS Gothic roofed granary provides storage for ear corn and small grain at a minimum cost per bushel. The framing is done in a substantial manner that insures a permanent structure that will carry its load of grain.

The cross-section view shows the arrangement of cribs, bins and elevator. Ear corn or small grain is dumped from the wagon into a receiving hopper and elevated by an endless bucket belt to the cribs, and to the bins for small grain over driveway. The slatted platforms or drying racks near the top of the cribs are convenient when the corn is slow in field curing, and needs further drying before being cribbed. Trap doors in the drying racks release the corn, which falls to the cribs below. The building is 27 feet 6 inches wide, 36 feet long, 31 feet high to base of cupola. The Gothic roof gives the needed space for manipulating grain spout, and furnishes more storage space per dollar of building cost than the older styles of roofs. Crib capacities are 4,000 bushels ear corn, 2,000 bushels small grain.

Order Long-Bell Blue Print No. G. R. 62—$1.50 each.
Plans include Gothic Rafter Detail and Material Bills.

Small Grain Storage

ON FARMS where the acreage devoted to small grain is not over thirty, the inexpensive granary pictured above meets requirements very well. This granary is 8 feet wide, 18 feet long and 10 feet high on the side in view. Capacity, 1,000 bushels.

The floor is raised 12 inches above ground moisture on a light concrete wall on two sides; the end foundations are omitted to give ventilation under, and as a precaution against rodents. Door openings are provided with removable retaining slats and hinged battened doors. To increase capacity add two feet in length for each 100 bushels of additional storage wanted.

Order Long-Bell Blue Print No. G. R. 61—25c each.

Material Bill included.

A Good Two Car Design

THE simplicity and good appearance of this garage are apparent at a glance. The hip roof is just the right pitch to look best; the eave treatment, and Long-Bell doors, design No. 161, all contribute to produce a garage that will add more to the value of a property than the building costs.

The dimensions are 20 feet square, and about 8 feet 6 inches plate height. To build a double garage of less size usually results in regret. The building is placed on a light concrete foundation which is raised above the finished floor level on three sides.

Material Bill included.

Stereotypes of the above building, as well as of any other building in the Long-Bell plan service, are available free to dealers in Long-Bell products for newspaper advertising.

A Better Looking Garage

THIS garage is an asset to the appearance of the building site. Too many garages are unnecessarily plain, often severely so. The garage may add to the attractiveness of the property; it should be in harmony with the dwelling, of like quality and pleasing to the eye.

The slight additional cost of this garage will deter no builder who knows the commercial value of good property appearance. The ground dimensions are 14 by 18 feet; the height to plate, 9 feet. The doors shown in the illustration are Long-Bell design No. 160.

Pergolas, Lawn Furniture and Garden Improvements

HE LONG-BELL PLAN SERVICE puts regularly at the disposal of dealers home designs and plans drawn up with attractiveness, practical arrangement and moderate cost in mind.

When the home is built, other little touches are necessary. The home builder usually devotes time and effort to developing a beautiful lawn, shrubbery, trees, a garden, a swing, an outdoor seat or two, and other features that provide the proper setting for a home.

Pergolas, arbors, combination trellises and seats, settees and other garden improvements built of wood give charming touches to the home grounds at little expense. Herewith are several suggestions as to the use to which wood may be put in making the home grounds most attractive.

These garden improvements may be built with little trouble. We do not have plans, estimates or details of construction. Lumber dealers can work out these points readily.

Attractive and Practical Things for the Lawn and Garden After the Home Is Built

HESE garden improvements may be built with little trouble. We do not have plans, estimates, or detail of construction. Lumber dealers can work out these points readily.

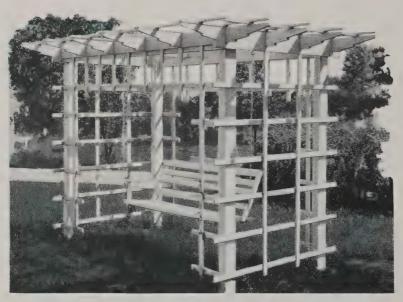

The rose trellis, lawn settee and chairs, with the appropriate shrubbery and vines, turn a back yard into a summer garden.

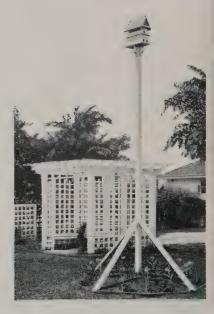

Note the bird houses on this trellis, with the bird bath conveniently near.

Trellised seats beside the garden walk suggest brighthued cushions, pillows and summer magazines.

Build a new porch swing. Paint it white and hang it in a pergola like this. An out-door swing for this use is easily built at home.

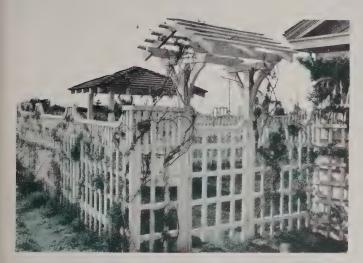

In planning gardens, one should not overlook the birds.

These garden and shrubbery guards suggest their own uses.

Garden Furniture and Accessories

An attractive garden seat

A practical, good-looking settee

OME can be more than the house we live in — especially in the summer time. When the warm days come everyone likes to get out-of-doors. Make your yard a part of your home. That extra footage you bought in your lot to keep adjacent dwellings from crowding your air and light space can mean much more than that to you.

Beautiful and comfortable grounds around your house are not so much a matter of monetary expense as they are a matter of the attention given to their upkeep. The finest of Oriental rugs is no more beautiful than a well-kept lawn. Flowers and shrubbery are not expensive.

And neither is attractive garden furniture. Anyone with a knack for handling tools and a paint brush can make a variety of attractive pieces for the garden, such as the seats, swings, pergolas and fences illustrated herein. Your lumberman can give you advice as to the best way to make them. No plans or blue prints are necessary.

Moreover, one does not have to have a large yard in order to "do anything with it." The smallest yard can be made charming at little expense with the addition of a well-kept lawn, some flowers, and two or three pieces of garden furniture.

A good bed of grass, some healthy and attractively placed flowers and shrubbery and some comfortable garden furniture will add to the value of your residence. And think of the added pleasure they'll give you, aside from the increased value of your investment. Let us tell you more about it.

Hay Sheds Pay Good Dividends

OF 50 TONS of clover hay stacked in the field, a loss by exposure to rain and sun of about 5 tons, or $50.00, may be expected. Fifty dollars will more than pay the interest and depreciation on the hay shed we picture.

This shed when built with Long-Bell creosoted poles will last a lifetime and pay for itself many times in tons of hay saved. It is 24 feet wide, 48 feet long and 18 feet from grade to plate. It is sufficiently wind braced to be rigid and keep plumb. Provision is made for filling by modern hay unloading tools. Capacity is about 46 tons of settled hay.

A Practical Ice House

THE improved methods of dairying and the better standards of farm and suburban living make necessary a summer supply of ice.

The size of an ice house determines the tonnage that can be put into it, but the quantity of ice saved and removed for use will depend on how the ice house is constructed, and the care used in packing.

The above pictured house has a capacity of about 32 tons if built according to plan and well filled. It would save for use about 20 tons. There is an outside double boarded wall of shiplap, waterproof paper and drop siding; an inside wall of shiplap—forming a 6-inch dead air space. Louvered gables insure a free circulation of air over the ice pack, and a trapped drain prevents air entering below. From six to twelve inches of dry sawdust should be used around the ice and from one to two feet on top.

Order Long-Bell Blue Print No. ICE-7—50c each. Material Bill included.

Long-Bell Stock Shed

A SHED of this kind is needed on all stock farms. When built with the open side to the south it provides the necessary protection from winter storms for young stock or cattle on full feed.

The shed illustrated is 16 feet wide, 48 feet long, 8 feet high in front and 7 feet in rear. The ground under the shed should be raised to insure a dry floor. The hay rack shown may be omitted if desired without interference with the general plan. Long-Bell creosoted posts are used on the open side; the ends and rear are supported on a light concrete wall.

Material Bill included.

NOTE—Orders for blue prints of any of the buildings in this service must come from retail lumber dealers.

Sweet Potato House

TO KEEP sweet potatoes over winter it is necessary to "cure" and store them in a building planned especially for the purpose. The house pictured above is so constructed that the sweet potatoes may be thoroughly dried or "cured" and afterwards kept at an even temperature and low moisture content. In designing the house pictured above we have incorporated the essential features of successful storage as determined by government and southern state experiment stations.

The floor of the building is raised 2 feet to avoid ground moisture, which height is convenient for unloading from wagons or trucks. Floors, walls and ceiling are double boarded and papered. The curing is done with stove heat, the stove being located near the center of the building. A ventilation system insures a circulation of air and assists in drying the sweet potatoes and maintaining a dry atmosphere in the house.

The "sweets" are stored in crates that are piled one on another as shown, leaving a center passageway. The building is 12 feet wide, 20 feet long and 7 feet from floor to ceiling. The outlet duct for moist air is capped with a revolving cupola—intake ducts are from the gable area downward near the four corners of the building. Blue prints furnish necessary details.

Nature's Incubator—The Hen

HATCH without accident in the natural hen incubator. Other hens can't lay to setting hens—hens can't wander away from nest. Each hen has separate run for exercise, dust bath and water—while eggs cool. Very simple—easy to build. Makes caring for setting hens very easy and pleasant—you get more chicks. Ask for lumber list and price.

A Practical Hen Coop

A N easy to build, practical coop for hens and brood. Place on dry ground or on a board platform—build them yourself, or ask for cost in lots of six ready to use. We have many plans for poultry houses not shown here. Be sure to examine them before building. Our houses and equipment make contented hens—and thrifty chicks.

Build This Brooder House—Save More Chicks

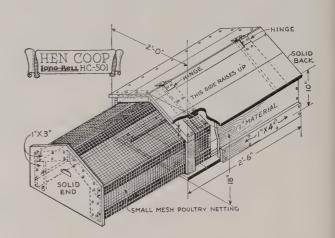

THIS 6x8 brooder house with wire enclosed run is very necessary equipment for those handling incubator chicks. It is substantial, roomy, ventilated and lighted, and has good sized run. Can be built of lumber by any one at all handy with tools. It's a chick saver and money maker—ask for price of lumber bill. When not in use for incubator chicks the hover is removed and the building used for other poultry. Such a house is never idle where poultry is kept—just the place for special mating stock, or fattening for market.

Poultry Self Feeder

EVERY raiser of poultry should have this self-feeder. Easiest way to feed grit, shell and grain. Let the hen balance her ration, she knows how—provide the needed variety, she will consume it in the right proportions. Long-Bell poultry feeder has four compartments—is simple and is easily built. Why pay more than this one costs? Build it according to the isometric picture—or ask for price ready-made.

Rat-proof Brood Coop

WE illustrate in figure No. 501 a telescoping coop built of lumber and poultry netting. This coop affords the double advantage of safety, with sunshine and exercising place for small chicks. In fair weather the coop is extended; at night or during rain the coop may be closed to exclude rats and moisture. This coop is inexpensive and durable when built of Long-Bell trade-marked lumber. Anyone with poultry experience will appreciate its advantages. Ask us about the cost.

Song Bird Houses

E NCOURAGE the birds to nest about the house. Build a bird house and notice how soon you have a tenant. Use light material, as shingles and bevel house siding and mount on pole or secure to building. Birds are companionable and they destroy insects that prey on vine and shrub. A house for wrens should have a round door opening one inch in diameter.

Hog Shipping Crate

THE illustration shows the most approved manner of building shipping crates for swine. The proportions and dimensions given in the table are correct for crates of all sizes. Such crates will carry safely long distances. The watering trough is a good feature. Use Long-Bell trade-marked lumber for best appearance and strength of crate. Ask for price of lumber. If you need many crates we probably can have them built at our yard ready to use. Crates 5 feet or more in length should have an upright post in center of the two sides. The crate in the picture is No. 2, 4 feet long.

ROUND THIS EDGE 2"BAT 1"X3" HOG HURDLE Ipng-Rell H-500

The Hog Hurdle

T stops, turns or guides a hog. Saves labor—saves time and temper. Makes handling and loading easy—weighs little—easily carried; worth ten times its cost as time and labor saver. Use a hurdle—handle hogs the easy way—see us for material and cost. A good grade of soft wood is best for the purpose.

Old Style Hog Trough

NOTHING better or cheaper than the old style V hog trough when it is built right. Use Long-Bell trade-marked plank—creosoted planks are best—apply tar at the bottom and end joints. Reinforce end blocks with band iron, illustration furnishes construction details—build long or short as needed. Ask for price of material or the cost of trough ready made.

Garden Hose Hanger

HANG up the hose when you're not using it. Hose will last twice as long when looped over the simple device we illustrate. It saves the hose—prevents snarls—saves time, money and annoyance. Can be built in a few minutes by any handy person.

Swine Self-Feeder

ET your hogs feed themselves from ✓ a storm-proof self-feeder. Repeated tests have proved that the self-feeder is a real economy. Self-fed hogs make cheap and satisfactory gains and much labor is saved.

The Long-Bell feeder is partitioned for corn and tankage—it is equipped with a throttle to regulate the flow of grain into the feed trough. A special feature is the small doors that the hogs push in when feeding. These doors close automatically and keep out rain and poultry. The feeder is of simple design, easy to build and a time-saver and money maker in the hog lot.

By referring to the drawing you will notice this feeder stands on a base 3 feet 5 1/4 inches wide—it is 4 feet 5 1/4 inches long and 3 feet 13/8 inches high to the square. The cover is in one piece, hinged to raise for filling and has sufficient slope to insure a dry feeder. It is substantial and inexpensive, not difficult to construct and will easily pay its cost in the grain saved and the better gain of the herd.

Stock Loading Chute

OADS hogs, sheep and calves without lifting. be moved to pen, or place of loading. Worth double its small cost as a time and back saver. Built with a pair of old wheels and Long-Bell trade-marked lumber. Follow directions in the isometric drawing. This portable chute is more help in loading than any extra hired hand. The lumber bill is made, all you need do is call and get it. The blacksmith wants to help you build this if you haven't the necessary tools, wheels and axle.

Mrs. Hog's Bungalow

A N ideal place for Mrs. Hog and her family. She will save more pigs and grow them faster in a hog bungalow. Roof arranged to open for sunshine on the nest. Built on creosoted runners—can be readily moved to fresh ground. The quiet and privacy of this house encourages large families. The extra pigs saved will pay the small cost of the bungalow. The illustration gives dimensions and detail. Build it of Long-Bell lumber—the lumber of no regrets. If you haven't the time or tools to build it ask us for price ready to use.

Hog Pen Equipment

B UILD hog pen floors with creosoted wood blocks—they are permanent, sanitary, warm and restful. The cost is not more than for concrete—the effect on health much better. They never wear out. Equip all farrowing pens with guard rails as seen in the illustration. They protect the pigs when small and may be turned up when not in use. Ask for price of material for floors of all farm buildings. Be sure to see all Long-Bell hog house plans before attempting to build. We help you build wisely at least cost.

A Better Wagon Rack

Try this rack and you will never use the old type basket—or flat rack.

HERE is a rack that has the essential features of the basket rack—but not its disadvantages. Handles either loose or baled hay without change of basket panels. An easy rack to enter or leave through the opening in the sides—unnecessary to clamber over the basket. A simple, solid rack—easy to keep in repair.

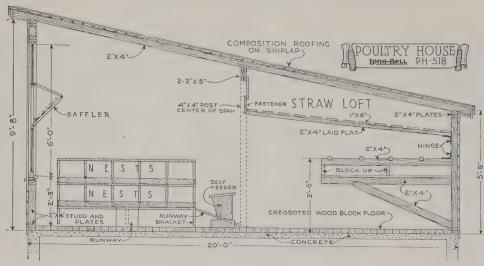

It has the short turn feature. The 2x12 sleepers are against the bolster stakes at rear—but are drawn six inches away from front bolster stakes to permit a shorter turn. Build this rack with Long-Bell trade-marked lumber—no better lumber is manufactured. Ask for list of material or price on completed rack.

Alfalfa Feeder For Swine

RIME alfalfa hay is a good substitute for pasture. Hogs eat it with relish and benefit. Late cuttings of good color and the leaves and finer hay from the barn loft floor are most desirable. On account of the waste, alfalfa cannot be fed on the ground. Long-Bell feeder No. 511 is a simple affair, but a money maker in the feed lot. The isometric illustration explain the construction: if a longer or shorter feeder is wanted we will advise you what material is necessary. Ask us about it.

Cross Section of Modern Poultry House

THE cross section drawing furnishes helpful suggestions for hen house designing and equipment. Roosts and platforms are supported by bracket to allow the chickens full use of floor space. Creosoted wood block floors are sanitary—mites and lice will not harbor near them—they make splendid hen house floors and are very durable. Notice the straw loft which is hinged to rear wall, and that may be lowered for easy filling. Straw absorbs surplus moisture—helps to maintain a dry, healthful interior. Straw must be removed and burned when it becomes damp. Nests may be placed one tier on another. They should be portable for easy cleaning. A Long-Bell self-feeder that contains shell, grit, feed and conditioner is shown.

The ventilator marked "baffler" is shown open. It is so built that air cannot blow directly through it when closed. These are modern improvements that may be applied to hen houses of all kinds and sizes. Ask for complete plans and cost of hen houses of any type and size.

The Stone Boat

A STONE boat saves the back. Heavy objects can be loaded on the "boat" without the lifting necessary to load on wheeled vehicles. Just the thing to move stone, plows, harrows, filled barrels, and other heavy objects. Costs little—lasts a life time. Easy to build of Long-Bell trade-marked lumber. Use creosoted timbers for runners; a used wagon tire will make the bale. A stone boat will earn its keep on any farm.

Portable Fence Panels

PLACED across a corner of the fence row they form a sheep or hog pen. Use to hog down corn or as emergency pens for young stock. Build of Long-Bell trade-marked lumber as shown. Easily put up or taken down — self-supporting, no holes to dig or posts to set. Ask for list of material and prices.

Portable Hay Feeding Rack

THE almost universal fault of hay racks is that they are wasteful. When hay was very cheap little account was taken of that spilled and tramped under foot, but to build a wasteful rack at present prices of hay would be a grave error. In feeding from a Long-Bell rack the animal must reach over a 22-inch manger. With this arrangement cattle feed with head in manger, thus minimizing waste.

Another good feature of the rack is, it is portable. Built on runners of Long-Bell trade-marked creosoted timber it can be moved about as needed, or shifted to a new position if mud holes develop about the rack. The isometric drawing shows how it is built. It's a hay and labor saver and easy to build. Ask us for a list and price of material.

A Home of Charm and Comfort

The charm of this well proportioned and distinctive bungalow is quick to catch the eye of small home builders. Economically designed, with attractive exterior and comfortably arranged interior, this bungalow plan has merit and should be considered by those who contemplate building a five-room home. A brief study of the floor plan will bring forth its many advantages. The glassed-in sleeping porch appeals to many—where but two bedrooms are required, the front bedroom may be converted into a nursery, sewing room, library or den.

A Bungalow That Is Popular

Order Long-Bell Blue Print No. 477— $1.50 each.

The popularity of this bungalow plan undoubtedly is due both to its attractiveness and the housekeeping advantages it affords. Compact, yet roomy, with floor space well utilized, it is a plan difficult to improve without adding to the cost. It affords a comfortable home and one which will retain a good resale value.

An examination of the floor plan will show that ample built-in features have been provided and roomy closets have not been overlooked. The long living room, with its fireplace, will be approved by every member of the family.

NOTICE:—Blue prints of these houses may be ordered by dealers handling Long-Bell trade-marked lumber products for $1.50 each. No alterations will be made. Be sure to specify blue print by number in ordering.

A Good Home Investment

Order Long-Bell Blue Print No. 478— $1.50 each.

Simple lines have been used to give this bungalow attractiveness without the expense that so frequently accompanies artistic design. It is the result of careful study and planning.

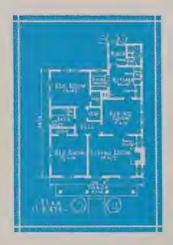

The accompanying floor plan shows that this home affords a maximum of floor space for the size of the home and money involved in its construction. One of the features is the economical, yet attractive manner in which the house roof is brought out over the porch. And the porch itself, with its sturdy floor and pier work, adds to the substantial appearance of this home.

NOTE:—Orders for blue prints of any of the homes in this service must come from retail lumber dealers.

With Pergola Porch and French Windows

Order Long-Bell Blue Print No. 474— Price, $1.50.

The pergola porch roof and French windows give this small home distinction that frequently is lacking in dwellings of greater cost. There are five rooms of comfortable size in addition to bath and breakfast room.

You will find, in this home plan, that the architect has provided a very complete modern house which can be built at moderate cost.

A Distinctive Type of Bungalow

Order Long-Bell Blue Print No. 479—$1.50 each.

Here is a plan that is exceptional and affords maximum building economy, its size and distinctive features considered. The floor plan shows a spacious living room in the center; on the left, dining room, breakfast room and kitchen; to the rear there is a bedroom, also another one on the right. The glassed-in sleeping porch really adds another bedroom.

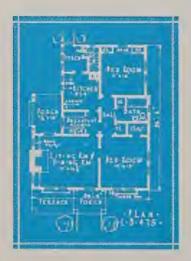

The housekeeping advantages of this plan will be appreciated. And if you like a larger living room, and can do without the rear bedroom, the living room can be extended the full length of the building, thus affording a room approximately 14x28 feet.

Stereotypes of the above house, as well as of any other house in the Long-Bell Plan Service, are furnished free to dealers in Long-Bell trade-marked lumber products for newspaper advertising. Specify width, 2 or 3 columns.

The Newer Type of Bungalow

Order Long-Bell Blue Print No. 475—$1.50 each.

The newer type of bungalow which is well exemplified by this plan, shows refinement and simplicity of line combined with economy of building material. It is a home which radiates much character and attractiveness. About the first thing noticed is the well balanced proportions of its exterior. The interior is in keeping with the exterior—simple floor plan, comfortable rooms, plenty of closet space without detracting from the general spaciousness and each room accessible in relation to the entire plan. You will also notice another touch of modernism—the combined living and dining room—a practical feature much in vogue these days.

Combines Comfort, Style and Economy

Order Long-Bell Blue Print No. 476— $1.50 each.

If you are searching for a home plan which combines comfort with good appearance and moderate cost, the one shown here is well worth serious consideration. As you examine the floor plan you will be impressed with the practical use made of every foot of floor space, though the rooms are of comfortable size and closets are not lacking. You will appreciate the exterior lines because of their simplicity, and for the skillful arranging of windows. Unpretentious yet stylish in its simple attractiveness, this plan is a favorite with many home builders.

NOTE:—Orders for blue prints of any of the homes of this service must come from retail lumber dealers.

An Attractive Five-Room Home

Order Long-Bell Blue Print No. 480— $1.50 each.

This type of home finds favor year after year with small home owners. Its sturdy appearance and simple, unpretentious lines are noted at a glance and appeal to well advised home builders.

There are five rooms—really six, because the glassed-in sleeping porch can be kept as comfortable and as useful as any other room in the house. All space has been utilized without waste or sacrifice to convenience.

This small home plan requires a ground area of  $27\frac{1}{2}$  feet by  $37\frac{1}{2}$  feet—proportions which conform closely to the requirements of the ordinary building lot of most cities.

NOTICE:—Blue prints of any plan in the Long-Bell Plan Service are available to dealers handling Long-Bell trade-marked lumber products for $1.50 each. No alterations will be made. Be sure to specify blue print by number in ordering.

Home Remodeling Suggestions

THE LONG-BELL PLAN SERVICE

Contents Copyright 1925

S American standards of living advance, and as domestic architecture changes and improves, the old style homes become increasingly undesirable. Many fine old homes that could be made delightfully attractive by remodeling, are sold for a song or rented to strangers.

To assist owners of old style homes to anticipate their improved appearance when remodeled, we picture some typical old homes as they stand today—and as they would appear when changed by alteration to conform to present architectural standards.

A Poor House On a Good Lot

HE cut below has been reproduced from an unretouched photograph of an old home of a type much in vogue some forty or fifty years.

The accompanying illustrations show how

An Old Style Cottage Home

this old house would appear when altered to conform to modern architectural standards.

The transformation wrought in the old house by alterations of moderate cost is surprising, but no more so than may be expected by skillful alteration of other types of old houses.

Example One

O change in length, breadth or height of roof pitch was made. The center gable is extended to shelter an improved entrance; better windows with decorative shutters—an end porch and door—painting and cement walk—shingles over the old siding—are all that was needed to render the old home very attractive. The cost of the exterior alteration would approximate $850*. When an old home has been kept painted and the siding is sound, the cost of remodeling would be considerably less than in this and the following examples.

Example Two

ELOW we see the old house slightly enlarged and its appearance greatly improved. The original center gable is extended and enclosed. The bay window is of harmonizing line and proportion and the sheltered entrance inviting. A better corner bedroom is provided, a roof dormer has been added, and broad siding replaces the old, the exterior painted. The cost of such alteration is estimated at approximately $1,000*. To replace the old house with an entirely modern new structure would call for an expenditure of around $6,000.

Remodeling Example Number Two

A Very Common Old Type

A House Considered Difficult to Remodel

LD houses of this type are very prevalent and almost entirely lacking in architectural grace. That such houses can be made prepossessing and distinctive is demonstrated in the accompanying illustrations. Owners of such homes who have long despaired of ever making them attractive will find encouragement and helpful suggestions in the views we present. The increased value of such old houses after skillful alterations are made, would, in most cases, show a good profit above remodeling cost.

Example Three

Y converting the bay window into a simply ornamented entrance; using small paned upper sash and shutters, and by re-shaping the ell, this unpromising old home becomes one of considerable attractiveness.

The cost of the exterior alteration including the wider siding and painting would approximate $1,000*. If new floors and modern plumbing were included in the remodeling, this would be a very desirable home and the entire cost would commonly be much less than one-half that of a new house of like size.

Remodeling Example Number Three

Remodeling Example Number Four

Example Four

HIS example shows a modern home of good proportions and simple grace. The addition of a vestibule to the old home and rearrangement of the porch and onestory ell are the principal factors in the conversion of an unattractive home into one of much charm.

Some change in window design and arrangement was made. Including exterior painting the cost would approximate $1,100*. This alteration would necessitate some interior rearrangement.

Plain Houses Are Easily Improved

HE home shown at the right is the birthplace of Daniel Webster. It is more than 140 years old. In the accompanying pictures we present the old Webster home as it would appear if remodeled to conform to a suburban building site. Such simple designed homes lend themselves readily to improvement; their breadth and hospitable appearance suggest a setting of spacious lawn and large trees. In remodeling this house no change of dimension or roof pitch was made.

Remodeling Example Number Five

Example Five

ERE is a striking demonstration of improved appearance of an old house that can be accomplished by exterior alteration. Through the addition of a gabled vestibule or reception room with graceful roof lines; and a porch and kitchen, the plain old house has acquired such modern architectural grace that few would believe it an old building. Roof dormers and better proportioned windows and painting are factors in its improvement. To build this home anew would cost, exclusive of the site, around $12,000. The cost for alterations in this example approximates $1,400*.

Example Six

HE substitution of small paned and shuttered windows; the improved entrance, and end porch with balcony roof are chiefly responsible for the improvement shown in this example. The wider siding is appropriate for so large and simple a structure, but not indispensable. Much of the improved appearance may be credited to painting. Such alterations are quite inexpensive when considered in relation to the increased value, or to the cost of building a new home of equal size and attractiveness.

Remodeling Example Number Six

A Box-like House Can Be Made Very Attractive

HIS old house is entirely lacking in architectural merit, yet by alteration it becomes a good-looking home. The accompanying illustrations portray the remodeling possibilities of many old style square or rectangular houses. A plain box-like house is easily converted into one of approved architectural appearance.

*The cost of building or remodeling is affected by distance from supplies of building material and by the varying cost of labor. The cost figures presented indicate an average approximate cost.

A Square, Hipped Roofed House

Remodeling Example Number Seven

Example Seven

ERE we have an example of the New England Colonial home; a type now in much favor with builders. To accomplish this transformation the windows of the old home were changed to a type in harmony with the structure; the gables were built up and a simple ornate entrance provided. To demonstrate how this house could be enlarged with benefit to appearance the architect has added a kitchen and sun room. The cost of exterior improvements including new siding and painting would approximate $1,500*.

Example Eight

SOUTHERN colonial style. The dimensions are exactly those of the old house. An improved front entrance, and better windows with shutters, and new paint is usually all that is needed to improve the appearance of such a plain house. In this remodeling example the architect has assumed a typical floor plan with centered entrance, and by adding the portico has demonstrated how an old home of this type lends itself to distinctive alteration. The cost of the exterior changes including the portico would approximate $1,500*.

A Home of Simplicity and Charm

As we progress in the art of home building we learn to properly esteem that which is simple and natural. There is something about homes of the kind pictured above that endear them; they improve with acquaintance and the passing of the years.

The builder of this home receives the double benefit of unquestioned excellence of appearance combined with low cost. There is no type less costly to build than the simple rectangular colonial home.

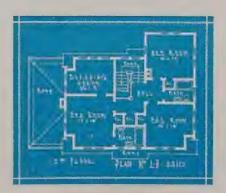

Such homes are noted for their convenient, well lighted interiors. The living room here is especially spacious and well proportioned but as the floor plans are examined it will be noted that in all respects the plan well fulfills modern expectations of convenient, comfortable and sanitary housing.

The plan makes provision for all modern conveniences usual to a home of this class and is one in which the housekeeper will find that much has been done to lighten the task of housekeeping.

A Most Desirable Home

We here present a home of most pleasing and distinctive type. It is something a little out of the ordinary, yet nothing essential has been sacrificed to obtain its air of distinction. The object of this architectural style seems to be the preservation of the homey, near to earth effect in a house of more than average size and height.

By bringing the roofs of the two gables down low over the front portal an illusion of coziness and hospitality is accomplished. In homes of later architectural type the roof is being used to promote the appearance.

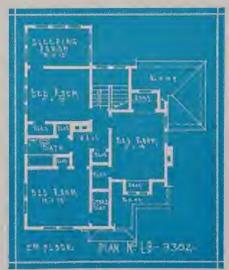

The room arrangement as will be shown by a study of the accompanying plans is one of unusual attractiveness. For those who need a home of such spaciousness we heartily commend this plan.

THE appeal in this home is in its simplicity and moderate cost.

Carefully built of dependable materials it will prove an investment paying dividends for many years to come.

The floor plan provides four rooms, breakfast room and bath. It would be difficult to develop a more convenient room arrangement than shown.

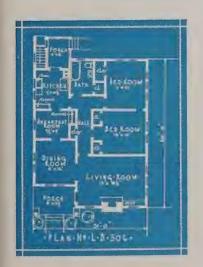

The breakfast room is large enough to serve the average family. The living room may be used as a dining room on special occasions. The bed rooms are both given unusually good position and are light and airy. Ample closet space is provided. The kitchen is arranged to save labor for the housewife by the use of modern built-in conveniences.

Another Well Planned Home

NOT alone for its very attractive exterior does this bungalow commend itself—it is one of the best planned homes of its type. The living room has a fireplace. The windows on either side of the fireplace, and the twin windows in the front make this room light and cheery.

The floor space is exceptionally well planned and provides a room arrangement that would be hard to improve upon.

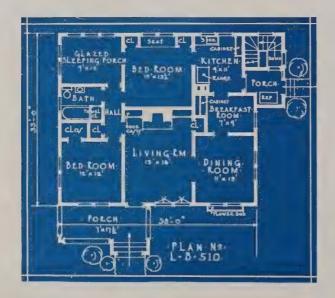

The three porches add to the value of this plan.

With a Center Living Room

Order Long-Bell Blue Print No. 510—$1.50 each

THE center living room is shown at its best in this plan. Space for book cases is provided at each side of the fire-place.

The arrangement of the five rooms, glazed sleeping porch, breakfast room and bath is splendid.

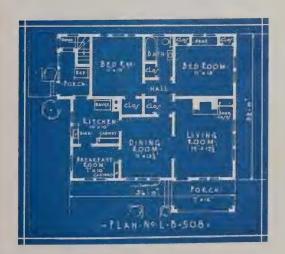

Both bed rooms are supplied with closets and have twin windows. The kitchen and breakfast room have modern built-in conveniences. The depth of this plan is only 33 feet while the width at the front is 38 feet, making it particularly appropriate for the shallow lot.

Orders for Blue Prints of any Long-Bell plans must come from retail lumber dealers.

Resale Value in This Home

Order Long-Bell Blue Print No. 508—$1.50 each

TO have full re-sale value a home must be well planned and provide a room arrangement suitable to the average small family. Much careful thought was given to the designing of this home. A study of the floor plan reveals many modern features.

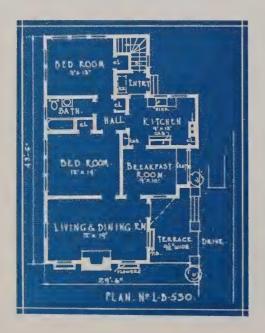

The interior is especially convenient and compact; the room arrangement is ideal, and will do much towards lightening the day's work for the housewife and, best of all, this house can be built for a very reasonable sum.

Safeguard your lumber investment—buy known dependable lumber—it's trade-marked "Long-Bell."

For the Narrow Lot

Order Long-Bell Blue Print No. 530—$1.50 each

THIS home which is designed for exterior walls of shingles or wide siding would be particularly suitable for a closely built-up suburban section because the narrow side faces the street. It could be built on a 40-foot lot, leaving room for a driveway.

The plan is so arranged that the rooms are light and airy. The living room may be used as a combination living and dining room on special occasions. The breakfast room is large enough to serve the family of average size.

Stereotypes of any Long-Bell home plans are available free to dealers in Long-Bell products for newspaper advertising.

A Unique But Practical Home Plan

THIS home is especially suited for frame construction with wide siding. It has an unusual exterior appearance, yet provides a most practical and convenient floor plan of four rooms, breakfast room and bath.

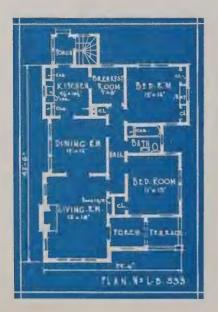

The large living room occupies the full width of the plan and serves as a combination living and dining room. All the rooms are well lighted and excellent cross ventilation is provided.

A Well Planned 5-Room Cottage

Order Long-Bell Blue Print No. 553—$1.50 each.

A STUDY of the accompanying floor plan will show that much care has been given to the planning of this home.

One unusual feature is that both bedrooms have windows on three sides, making them well lighted and especially comfortable during the summer months.

The center hall is very desirable in this plan as it allows access to any part of the house without passing through other rooms.

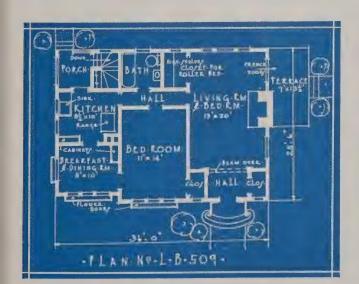

The kitchen is well equipped with modern built-in conveniences and occupies a good position in relation to the dining and breakfast rooms. Entrance to the basement is made from the closed-in back porch.

Orders for blue prints of any of the plans in this service must come from retail lumber dealers.

A Dignified Small Home

THIS home with its dignified exterior and wide siding would look well in any suburban district. Preferably it should be placed on a lot with a wide or corner frontage inasmuch as the width of the plan is 10 feet 6 inches greater than the depth.

It could easily be fitted to the narrow lot, in which case the terrace would face the street, and the entrance to the hall would be made from the side.

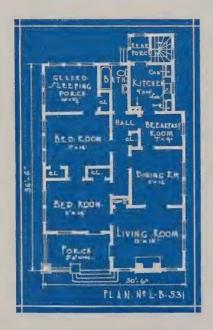

The plan shows a very pleasing arrangement of rooms for the small family. The living room is large and provides space for in-a-door bed.

A Charming Home With Compact Flor Plan

Order Long-Bell Blue Print No. 531—$1.50 each.

THE rectangular shape of this home and the compact floor plan arrangement make it reasonable in cost for the room space provided.

The exterior gives an impression of the well built home. The porch roof is a continuation of the main roof.

The plan is only 30 feet 6 inches by 36 feet 6 inches but provides five rooms of moderate size, a sleeping porch and bath. There is a door connecting the bedrooms. This is especially desirable where there are small children in the family.

The trade-mark "Long-Bell" on the end of the board identifies dependable lumber. Ask for it by name.

A Convenient Five-Room Farm Home

THIS plan provides the features essential to ideal house-keeping on the farm. The well-planned kitchen is equipped with cabinets, pantry and cupboards. The entrance for the men from the fields or stables is by a rear grade entrance where they can wash up and change clothes and go directly to dining or bed-rooms without passing through the kitchen.

Good features of the living room are its five front windows, the coat closet in the entry and the fireplace. The two bed-rooms are cross ventilated and convenient to the bath room.

This group of farm homes was planned in strict observance of the special requirements of country living as reported by more than 1,000 men and women living on farms. Before publication these plans were submitted for criticism to rural architectural authorities of several states. That the well-planned farm home is essentially different from the town house is apparent to anyone who examines these plans.

A Farm Home Planned Room by Room

In this design the architect has demonstrated that a home may be planned room by room to meet the exacting requirements of farm housekeeping without any sacrifice of good exterior appearance. The model kitchen which is large enough to allow space for a breakfast table at the front window, is centrally located and equipped with pantry and dumb waiter. Entrance to the cellar is directly from the kitchen which is abundantly lighted, provided with warm weather flue ventilation, and from which there is a good view of front premises or highway. The rear grade entrance is into the men's wash-up room, and thence to the dining room without passing through the kitchen or other rooms. The large opening between the dining room and living room permits extending the dining room table into the living room when necessary.

A Distinctive Colonial Farm Home

THE labor saving room arrangement in this distinctive Colonial home will appeal strongly to the busy housewife. Coming in from field or feed lot, the men can clean up at the wash-room in the grade entrance, and go to the dining room or bed-rooms without passing through other rooms. The cheerful, convenient kitchen has warm weather flue ventilation, and affords space for a breakfast table and both range and oil stoves.

The office or emergency bed-room is entered from either the hall or end porch. The bath-room is shown near the kitchen range, and toilet upstairs, but this arrangement may be reversed if desired. The driveway entrance is from the end porch into a hall communicating with all rooms and the Roomy closets, laundry chutes and linen cases are provided in bed-rooms which are light and airy.

An Ideal Farm Cottage

SPECIAL attention should be given to the modern, well-lighted kitchen in this home, from which there is a view toward the highway and which provides space for a breakfast table by the front window, and room for both range and summer oil stove.

The pantry serves nicely as a cold storage room for milk and other perishables during the spring and fall.

The wash-up room for men is on the work-porch. If the attic is used for sleeping it can be reached from the grade entrance without passing through other rooms.

The bath-room is near the kitchen range and convenient to bed-rooms. The living-dining room is of generous size and has a long window seat and a fireplace.

The exposed chimney and deep porch are other pleasing features. This home is very moderate in cost, and will yield full value for every dollar expended in its building.

Order Long Bell Blue Print No. 4004— $1.50 each. No alterations will be made—Material lists are not available.

A Small Home of Unusual Charm

THE splendid exterior features of this home will cause it to stand out among its neighbors as one of unusual charm and distinction.

It would be difficult to design a home of this size with better cross ventilation or with a more convenient room arrangement. It has five rooms, breakfast room and bath. The living room is large and provides good wall space for the larger pieces of furniture. The kitchen and breakfast rooms have modern built-in conveniences and each has ready access to the dining room. Entrance to the basement is made from the rear of the kitchen.

THE cozy, homelike appearance of this plan is due to the care used in designing the exterior. Wide siding gives it a close-to-the-ground effect that is very pleasing in a home of this type.

The floor plan shows a good arrangement of five rooms, sleeping porch, breakfast room and kitchen. The center hall allows ready access to the bathroom from either bed-room, living room or dining room without passing through a second room.

The living room is of ample size and provides for book-cases at either side of the fireplace. Built of dependable materials by skilled workmen, this home should prove a good investment for many years to come.

It is not strange that the master builder demands the best materials. Loyal these better builders have been to Long-Bell trade-marked lumber products, their experience having taught them the construction value and economy of these products of a half-century-old company.

A Conservative, Well Planned Home

THE simple, straight lines of this home give it a substantial, well-built appearance.

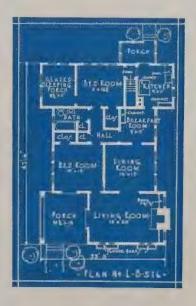

The floor space is well utilized and although the room arrangement is rather unusual it is very convenient. The entire plan is well lighted.

French doors open onto the porch from both the living room and front bed-room. The living room is 13x20 feet and the other rooms are of average size.

Entrance to the basement is made from a small hall-way between the back bed-room and kitchen. Modern built-in conveniences are provided for the breakfast room and kitchen.

Long-Bell pioneered in trade-marking lumber products so that you might KNOW THE LUMBER YOU BUY. Only consistent, uniform quality could maintain the value of this trade-mark.

A Promise of Comfort

THE accompanying floor plan reveals a home planned to give the utmost in comfort and convenience.

The spacious living room has a fireplace with bookcases on either side. The front bedroom is provided with a 5x8 foot dressing room with built-in clothes cabinets. The dining room opens onto a side porch. This porch may also be reached from the living room or breakfast room.

The front porch extends the full width of the plan and gives this home a hospitable appearance.

Housekeeping Convenience in This Home

Dimensions: Extreme width 41 feet. Depth 44 feet. Floor area not including porches, 1,186 square feet.

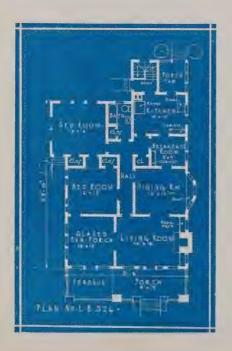

BRIEF study of the room arrangement of this home convinces one of its merits. Here the bath and bed-rooms are removed from the culinary department by the living-room, which gives a much appreciated privacy to each. The lighting and ventilation are especially good. The living-room readily can be given additional depth when desired.

Dimensions: Extreme width 35 feet. Depth 52 feet. Floor area not including porches, 1,456 square feet.

THE good-sized porch and terrace, the red brick pillars in contrast to the snowy-white woodwork, the brick base course providing a background for flowering shrubs, make the appearance of this home most pleasing.

The room arrangement, as shown by the accompanying floor plan, saves steps and provides comfort. This home can be built on a lot from 45 to 50 feet in width, allowing plenty of room for a driveway.

NOTE—Orders for blue prints of any of the homes in this service must come from retail lumber dealers.

A Charming Exterior and Compact Floor Plan

Dimensions: Extreme width 32 feet. Depth 50 feet 6 inches. Floor area not including porches, 1,302 sq. ft.

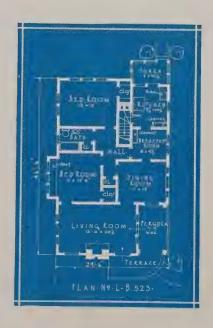

THE well-proportioned fireplace chimney, the handsome French doors, the pergola over the terrace, and the roof ornaments, give this home a most charming exterior appearance.

The floor plan is compact and provides a large, well lighted living-room, two bed-rooms, dining-room, kitchen, breakfast room and bath. The living-room has doors opening into the front bed-room and the dining-room.

A lot of only usual width is required for this home.

An Unusual But Inexpensive Home Plan

Dimensions: Extreme width 36 feet 6 inches. Depth 45 feet. Floor area not including porches, 1,258 sq. ft.

THE quaint charm of this unusual but inexpensive home is very apparent. It provides quite a number of modern conveniences for so small a home. It has plenty of closet space, modern built-in conveniences in the kitchen and breakfast-room, closed-in side and back porches and a fireplace.

If the builder of this home required only a small dining-room, the entire breadth of the house could be used for a very large living-room.

A Modified English Cottage

Dimensions: Extreme width 36 feet. Depth 43 feet. Floor area not including porches, 1,238 square feet.

THE modified English cottage type of home is preferred by many builders because it is considered an improvement in appearance as contrasted with the usual type of cottage or bungalow.

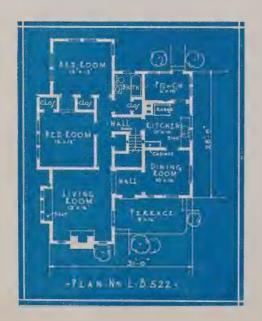

Long-Bell Plan No. 521 pictured here has had careful designing both as to the exterior appearance and convenience of the floor plan. It provides an excellent arrangement of five rooms and sleeping porch. The living-room is large and exceptionally well lighted.

Dimensions: Extreme width 34 feet. Depth 44 feet. Floor area not including porches, 1,112 square feet.

HERE is a splendid example of the smart English cottage that is now so much in favor. One of the outstanding merits of this home is its economy of material and building cost.

It is most inexpensively designed, although not at all ordinary in appearance. The floor plan shows a pleasing room arrangement that reduces the work of housekeeping to a minimum. The good judgment used in placing the small hall-ways adds much to its convenience.

NOTE—Orders for blue prints of any of the plans shown in this service must come from retail lumber dealers.

With Combined Living & Dining Room

Dimensions: Extreme width 32 feet 6 inches. Depth 47 feet. Floor area not including porches, 1,065 sq. ft.

THE quaint simplicity of this well proportioned home of the English cottage type will appeal to discriminating builders. Strict economy has been exercised in designing this home and it is of a type fast gaining approval as it is inexpensive to build and furnishes a welcome contrast to the usual type of one-story home.

The living-room is large and may be used as a combination living and dining-room. However, the breakfast room is of good size and will serve as a dining-room for the small family.
